Objective – General direction of design:

‘Modular, Clear, Communicative’

General Style

Modular, Clear, Communicative

Headline messages — large or oversized web banner image pinned to the header section. Establishes brand value and experience of visitor.

Communication in short sentences — Twitter approach.

Big Headlines for blocks.

Typography on top of imagery.

More use of visual graphics layouts.

Highlighting the most important elements — enlarge anything you think will benefit your user or encourage engagement, including quotes, sign up forms, testimonial boxes, and call to action buttons.

Hierarchy — making the key elements of your site larger, using headings in text, emphasis, bold.

Video on landing pages increases conversion rates.

The screenshot shows a modular website layout. At the top right is a "Spotlight" section with a colorful abstract graphic and the text "Internet Health Report". Below it is a "Take action" section with four cards: "Volunteer at MozFest 2021" (image of people at a laptop), "Let's Unfck The Internet" (purple banner with text), "Supporting Black Artists Examining AI" (image of two people looking at a whiteboard), and "How's the internet helped you this year? Tell us!" (image of a heart-shaped network of icons). To the right is a "Protect the internet as a global public resource" card with a form to join a Mozilla News email list. At the bottom is a navigation bar with links like "About", "Our Work", "Press", "Careers", and "Contact". A footer bar at the very bottom contains links to "Mozilla.org", "Privacy Policy", "Terms of Service", and "Cookie Policy".

The screenshot shows a page from PLOS ONE titled "Benefits of Open". The header features the PLOS logo and the tagline "When science becomes more Open, we all advance." Below the header is a navigation bar with links: "Why Open Access?", "Published Peer Review History", "Preregistration", "Preprints", "Protocols", "Open Data", and "ORCID". The main content area has a teal background and features a large heading "Why Open Access matters". Below this is a block of text explaining the issue of paywalled research. Further down, there is a quote from Elias Nerad, a PLOS ONE Author, followed by a testimonial from another author. The page also includes a section titled "BENEFITS OF OPEN ACCESS PUBLICATION" with four icons: a green speech bubble for sharing research, a red circular icon for getting noticed, a yellow circular icon for collaboration, and a purple circular icon for informing the future. At the bottom, there are two links: one for "Under An Open Access, CC-BY License" and one for "Open Access Allows Everyone To Benefit From Your Advancements".

Fellow-Programm Freies Wissen

Mitschnitt der Auftaktveranstaltung 2020/21

Informations zum Fellow-Programm Freies Wissen

Mit dem Fellow-Programm fördert Wikimedia Deutschland Freies Wissen in der Wissenschaft, verbreitet den Wissensschaffenden und unterstützt die Entwicklung von Gewerken, die sich mit Freiem Wissen beschäftigen. Das Programm geht auch um eine Ausbildungswelt mit den Fokus: Wir offen ein Offenes Wissen tatsächlich ist und wie Prinzipien von Diversität und Equity etabliert werden können. Denn Wikimedia setzt sich als globale soziale Bewegung besonders für Wissen und Communities ein, welche durch Machtstrukturen und Privilegien behindert werden.

Das Programm richtet sich an Nachwuchswissenschaftler*innen aus allen Disziplinen. Mit Monitoring, Qualitätsurteilen und Netzwerkangeboten sowie einem Stipendium unterstützen wir unsere Fellow dabei, Prinzipien Offener Wissenschaft in die eigene wissenschaftliche Arbeit zu integrieren und als Beobachter*innen andere für dieses Thema zu sensibilisieren.

Im Oktober startet die nächste Programm-Runde. Wie in den letzten Jahren auch beteiligen sich über 100 wissenschaftliche Partner*innen. Workshops und Inputs am Programm unterstreichen die Bedeutung des Wissens für die Praxis und Umwelt. Ein Open Knowledge Map, die Technische Informationsbibliothek (TIB), die Universitätsbibliothek der Potsdam University sowie innos, das Forum offene Innovationskultur vom Stifterverband.

Die wichtigsten Informationen über das Programm finden sich auf dieser Website. Das Fellow-Programm Freies Wissen ist aber auch hier zu finden:

Stellen Sie sich eine Welt vor,
... in der alle Menschen am Wissen der Menschheit teilhaben, es nutzen und mehrere können. Das ist unsere Vision von Freiem Wissen!

Der gemeinnützige Verein Wikimedia Deutschland wurde 2004 von ehrenamtlichen Wikipedia-Aktiven gegründet. Seitdem setzen wir uns – gemeinsam mit der Universität, Unternehmen, Migranten und vielen Tausenden Spendern – dafür ein, dass Wikipedia sich als größte Online-Enzyklopädie weiterentwickelt und darüber hinaus das Freie Wissen stärker in unserem Alltag verankert wird.

Unterstützung für Wikipedia und digitales Ehrenamt

Während die Inhalte der Wikipedia und anderer Wiki-Projekte ausschließlich von ehrenamtlichen Autorinnen und Autoren geschrieben und bearbeitet werden, sind die technischen Funktionen der Plattform Community. Wir fördern die Freiwilligen in ihrem digitalen Ehrenamt und in der Umsetzung ihrer Ideen. Diese Plattform entwickelt und verbessert sich auf Basis der Wissens- und wissenschaftlichen Aktivität.

Use libraries: How to make visuals without a designer

The screenshot shows the OpenMoji website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for OpenMoji, Library, Participate, Samples, FAQ, and About. A yellow callout bubble labeled "Emoji library" points to the main content area, which displays a grid of numerous emojis. Below the grid, a text box says "Open source emojis for designers, developers and everyone else!" and a search bar contains the placeholder "search emoji ...". A URL at the bottom is <https://openmoji.org/>.

The screenshot shows the Unsplash website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for Photos for everyone, Search free high-resolution photos, Brands, New, Explore, Login, and Join free. A yellow callout bubble labeled "Stock image" points to the main content area, which displays a grid of three images: "Wallpapers" (epic drone shots), "Nature" (mountain landscape), and "People" (woman walking). Each image has a green "Open" button. Below the grid, a section titled "All topics" shows more categories like Current Events, Business & Work, Experimental, Fashion, Film, and Health & Wellness. A URL at the bottom is <https://unsplash.com/>.
